- I can express general quantities.
- I can talk about what people are doing.

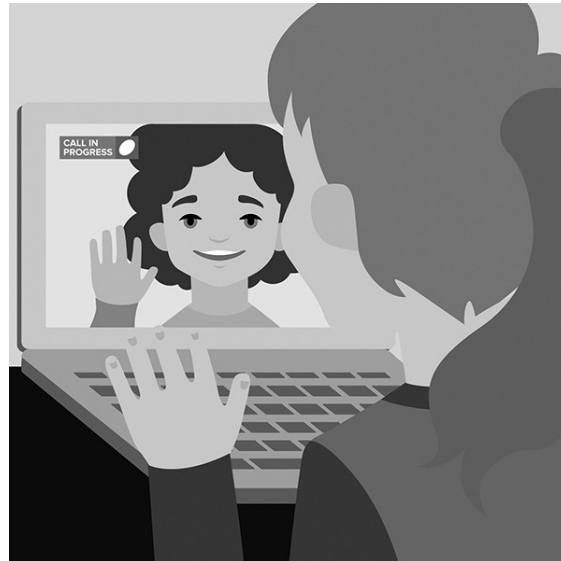

Let's Explore!

Vanessa is attending a class next week!

* This is in the Present Continuous tense. It is an event that is already planned.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Sally: Hey! How's cooking school?
- Vanessa: Cooking school is okay but so much homework!
- Sally: You're getting lots of practice though.
- Vanessa: What are you doing?
- Sally: I'm sitting in a train and eating curry. I love Indian food!
- Vanessa: San Francisco has a great Indian community and many festivals. In fact, I went to one by City Hall this weekend.
- Sally: What's that?
- Vanessa: It was about Indian heritage. There were so many things!
- Sally: Did you buy any jewelry?
- Vanessa: Yes! I walked around the bazaar. I bought many spices and some shawls. I ate so much food and there was so much meat! I'm attending a class about how to make a pie next week. I should make a meat one!
- Sally: I'm getting some takeout when I arrive in London! We're arriving in London this evening.

Learning Points

Much, Many, Some, Any

Much and many are quantifiers.

You use many with count nouns to talk about the number of items. You use much with non-count nouns to talk about the amount or quantity of an item.

You can also use some and any. The words some and any are used for count and non-count nouns.

Some means a few or a little. Any can mean none or a few or a little.

When you use any in a question, it means a few. In a negative sentence, it means none.

Examples:

- There are many dishes from India.
- Did you buy any vegetables?
- Some dishes don't have much meat in them.
- There was so much meat!
- There isn't any here.

Talking About Future Plans

You use the Present Continuous tense to talk about:

- events happening now, or
- planned events in the near future

When you talk about events in the near future, you use time markers and prepositions of time like:

- in _____ minutes/hours/days
- this morning/afternoon/evening
- tonight
- tomorrow
- on Tuesday (a future day or date)
